AGUIRRE'S QUICK WORDS

forts to a strong technical argument.

Capt. Beall then spoke in reply, dwelling strongly upon the plea of American citizenship raised for Aguirre. The day had been, he said, when this might have availed but thank God, it was no longer so. He read from the treaty articles covering such cases and urged that no such plea be permitted to protect a criminal from punishment. It was a universal principle of law that in no country in the world could a criminal demand an asylum as a right.

JUDGE SEXTON'S DECISION.

When Capt. Beall closed his argument Judge Sexton proceeded to deliver his decision. Summing up he said that the alibi failed through the contradiction in the testimony. Had the case at bar been a preliminary hearing on the charge of murder in the state of Texas the evidence advanced would have obliged the examining magistrate to hold the defendant for trial.

MUST GO BACK.

The commissioner therefore ordered the defendant remanded to the county jail to await the action of the secretary of state and announced that the papers would all be forwarded to Washington as soon as possible.

WILL STILL FIGHT.

At noon Judge Wilcox intimated that he was not done with the case yet and that he would fight the case at Washington on the ground of the irregularities of precedence argued by him at the trial.

NEW YORK

What Man Should Love—McKinley And Woodruff—Croker And Hill—Robbery Under Cover Of Law—Certain "Puts" Called To Memory—Wagner's Music Not So Popular This Year As Last—Carnegie's Million Dollar Home.

Special Correspondence of the HERALD.

NEW YORK, March 5.—President McKinley, spending Sunday in New York, attended the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church to find a Methodist bishop, Rev. E. G. Andrews, in the pulpit. Many who heard Bishop Andrews believed his remarks verged upon criticism of McKinley's Philippine policy, although he may have had no such intention. Bishop Andrews, in the course of a sermon mainly doctrinal, caused everybody in the congregation to look curiously at President McKinley by saying: "Man loves his family, his neighbors and his country. He should love his family, his neighbors and his country, but he should also love the people of every other race as we love ourselves. What is patriotism but a narrow care of our own land and city, such as the Romans had when they trampled out the lives of other nations. One of our greatest generals said that the only good Indian was a dead Indian. One of our greatest judges said that the black man had no rights which a white man was bound to respect. Whether or not this is true, there are indications of a tendency not to value men of other races as we value our own."

President McKinley's speech at the Ohio Society dinner is regarded as the opening gun of his campaign for reelection. The presence and speech of Lieutenant Governor Woodruff on the same occasion encourage his friends in the hope that he may be nominated for vice-president. Senator Platt, who was in town over Saturday night, has called attention to the fact that Mr. Woodruff is the only vice presidential candidate who is making an aggressive canvass, and adds that "it sometimes happens that the aggressive candidate wins."

That ex-Senator Hill will be one of the four delegates-at-large to the Kansas City convention is confirmed by Corporation Counsel Whalen, who, as a messenger from Richard Croker, has had an interview with Hill on the subject. Croker's overtures to Hill in this connection are of much interest. The ex-senator is no longer the power he was in New York politics, although he has a following up the state. But in the state convention he was beaten by Croker, and would not be able to go to Kansas City as a delegate-at-large if Croker was opposed to it. It is the most reasonable theory that Hill will go to the national convention because Croker wants him there to fight for a platform on which New York democrats may stand with some hope of carrying the state. Hill is just the man to do that work. Besides, this is a year of "harmony," and democrats are trying to get together in this state. The election of Hill as delegate-at-large is one step in the direction of harmony.

Comptroller Coler has produced something of a sensation here by his speech declaring that "robbery in the city of New York is now being done every day under cover of law," and that "some of our modern statesmen, under the shield of the legislature, have made daring raids on the city treasury and caused Tweed's efforts to look like those of an amateur." This speech strikes in two directions—at the republican legislature and at the Tammany city government. It is especially forcible because it points out Corporation Counsel Whalen, who is Croker's chosen representative, as responsible for some of the legalized robbery of the city. Coler declares that Whalen has defeated every bill the former is interested in for the protection of the city treasury. This kind of talk may make Comptroller Coler the next reform candidate for mayor. His fearless utterances are gaining for him the same kind of popularity that Roosevelt's aggressive independence has obtained for him.

There is a general demand for an investigation of the books and past management of the Third Avenue Railroad which has just passed into the hands of a receiver. There is a strong suspicion of a political and financial scandal, and it is alleged that an investigation would be sensational in its results. Thus, it is claimed that the so-called "Huckleberry road" in the annexed district, bought originally for $4,000,000, was resold to the Third Avenue for $6,000,000, a profit of $2,000,000 for somebody. The Tammany contractors, Noughten & Co., have, too, it seems, mulcted the company for millions. Wall street is interested in the story of two "puts" on Third Avenue stock at 84, issued by the David Lamar, a well known character in the street during the past two or three years. The puts were bought by two brothers, who would now be glad to present the 7000 shares and receive $84 a share for them, as the stock is selling at $50. The difference in price means a profit of $238,000 to the holders of the puts, provided Mr. Lamar can pay for the stock on delivery.

The first of this season's two cycles of Wagner's "Ring of the Nibelung" ended with the performance of "Gotterdammerung" last night. There has been a considerable lack of interest in these Ring performances this year, as compared with the sensation they produced last season, when there were three cycles, and the public crowded the opera house to see them. Moreover, it is claimed that the audiences at the grand opera have as a rule displayed less enthusiasm than formerly, and from this it is argued by some that last season's enormous success represented the zenith of musical enthusiasm in this city, and that a reaction is now setting in. Some idea of the cost of such grand opera as is now enjoyed by the principal cities of this country is given by Gustave Kobbe in Ainslie's Magazine. He says that Mr. Graue's expenses amount to $40,000 to $45,000 a week, or about $1,000,000 a season.

Babb, Cook and Willard, architects, have completed a model of the Fifth Avenue mansion that is being built for Andrew Carnegie, and the miniature palace has been placed on exhibition in the rooms of the Architectural League. The cost of the residence will be about $1,000,000. The material used in construction is Indiana limestone and Harvard brick. There will be decorations in marble, onyx and bronze. The residence will have a width of 70 feet and a depth of 180 feet. The principal entrance will be in Ninety-first street. Probably more than half the block in Fifth Avenue will be transformed into a garden.

Shall Snyder Be Incorporated?—Church Enlargement—Poisoning Dogs—Minor Matters.

Special Correspondence of the HERALD.

SNYDER, Tex., March 8.—In response to a petition signed by a large number of the voters of Snyder, the county judge ordered an election to be held on the 10th of March to determine whether or not Snyder shall be incorporated for school purposes.

A subscription paper was circulated and $500 raised to enlarge the Methodist church here. The lumber is being hauled and the work will commence at once.

The candidates for office are getting numerous and their announcements are making the editors' hearts glad.
